Lacey, WA. Monday, January 23, 2017: Women representing all of the members of the Seattle Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women (SACCW) proudly serve at the Annual Mass For Life. These strong women show their support visibly by wearing the blue Council scarf. The Council was asked to assist when the Mass For Life first moved to the Marcus Pavilion on the campus of St. Martin's University. The SACCW have served throughout the Archdiocese since 1924 and have worked on various life issues during this time. Issues such as the Right to Life, Combating Human Trafficking, the CRS Water For Life program, Cross Catholic Outreach and so much more.

"Our members span from the north in Bellingham to Camas in the south and Port Angeles in the west to Arlington in the east. Our women are passionate about life issues and serve their parishes and communities as educators, missionaries and leaders" states President, Suzanne Lindergren. "More women are learning about our organization, it's history and mission and want to be a part of it. Together, we can accomplish so much more good in our communities." Sylvia Miller, a Deanery President added "It was a pleasure to celebrate the Giver of life together." A newer group volunteer, Maria Nelson says "I was exactly where God planned me to be, at the entrance welcoming everyone and thanking them for attending the pro life Mass. Such an honor to participate."

Members representing these parishes are pictured above: St. Stephen the Martyr in Renton, St. Anthony in Renton, St. James Cathedral, St. Nicholas in Gig Harbor, Holy Rosary in Tacoma, St. Rita in Tacoma, St. Michael in Olympia, Our Lady Star of the Sea in Bremerton and North American Martyrs in Seattle.

About Our Organization: The Seattle Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Women seeks to support, educate and empower ALL Catholic women in the areas of Spirituality, Leadership and Service.
